A Look Ahead

With the 1998 Magic World Championships, the 1997–98 Pro Tour season will come to a close. The Pro Tour player of the year will be chosen, the World Champion will be crowned, and the National Champions will return to their home countries.

And then, less than a month later, the 1998–99 Pro Tour season will commence with Pro Tour–Chicago, September 25–27. The Qualifiers have already begun (see pages 8–13 for the Qualifier nearest you), and the official list of invitees based on DCI ratings is scheduled to be announced in August. Although the format for the Qualifiers is Rath Cycle Rochester Draft (cards are placed face up on the table while the players draft), Pro Tour–Chicago will be Rath Cycle Booster Draft (players each have one booster from which they draft a card before passing it to their neighbor; nobody can see how their opponents have drafted).

After Chicago, the Pro Tour circuit will make its way to Rome, Italy, in November (an Extended-format event, with Rath Cycle Constructed Qualifiers) and Los Angeles, California, in March. Los Angeles will be the reverse of Chicago, with Booster Draft Qualifiers and a Rochester Draft main event (using Urza's Saga cards rather than the Rath Cycle set). The final Pro Tour event of the season will land on the East Coast, featuring Urza's Saga Constructed, with Extended Qualifier tournaments.

The 1998-99 Pro Tour season will end, as usual, with a round of National Championships around the world, and the Magic World Championships to round off the season.

Junior Super Series Championship

Smaller Magic Players Hit the Big Time

After a year of Qualifiers across the country, the Junior Super Series culminated in the Super Series Championship in Orlando, Florida, June 5–7. The event was held in the spacious Disney's Wide World of Sports Fieldhouse, which is the Atlanta Braves' spring training site, and home to many sporting events.

On Friday, over 160 juniors competed in the Open event, hoping to earn entry into Saturday's Championship. The competitors came from across the United States, with a few Canadians for good measure. In the 16-to-18 division, Bryan Walker went 5–0, while in the 15-and-Under division, Billy Postlethwaite was the lone undefeated player. Although "Sligh" decks were the most common (one estimate placed the number of Sligh decks at about 60 percent of the field), many players changed their decks for the next day, dramatically reducing the deck's showing for the weekend.

Forty juniors from each division of the Open competed the next day, along with the 24 who qualified in the Divisional Championships held at Pro Tour–Chicago, Pro Tour–Los Angeles, and Pro Tour–New York. Saturday's Championship began in earnest, with 128 competitors in two 64-player divisions competing to make it into their respective Top 8 fields on Sunday. In the upper division, Julian Fane went undefeated over six rounds, losing only two duels with his "Godzilla" deck. The top seed in the lower division, Blake Quelle, played a white-weenie deck. Quelle admitted his playtesting had led him to misread the metagame, saying, "some of my sideboard cards were useless."

Parents and friends of the competitors were able to monitor the event's progress on the Sideboard's coverage on the World Wide Web. The coverage included round-by-round updates, feature matches, and pictures of the side events. For the first time, nearly every competitor was featured with a picture and a brief biographical sketch.

While the Championship raged on, Exodus Prerelease tournaments were held in another end of the huge room. Normally, players would drop from the Championship to go participate in the Prerelease event as their chances of making the Top 8 dwindled. However, scholarships were to be awarded to everyone (the 64th-place finishers received $1,000 scholarships). Thus, there was incentive for even the lower finishers to play until the final round, even if they knew they had no chance to play on Sunday.

Sunday turned into a great day for the underdogs as the Top 4 seeds in the 16-to-18 division all lost their quarterfinal matches. Then in the semifinals, seeds 5 and 6 both lost, which produced a 7 vs. 8 matchup in the finals.

The upper-division finals showcased Florida-native Andrew Pacifico, who had taken second place at the Eastern Division Championship, against Arizona's Shawn Keller, who came in third in the Western Division Championship. After a marathon first game that lasted over an hour, Pacifico's "Five-Color Flagpole Control" deck cruised to victory over Keller's Living Death/Spike Feeder "Peaches" deck, with a final score of three games to none. Pacifico was crowned Champion of the 16-to-18 division, earning himself a $10,000 scholarship in the process.

In the 15-and-Under division, Jay Elarar faced Charles Kornblith. The thirteen year-old Elarar actually flew to Florida from Vancouver, British Columbia, to compete in the Open on Friday, securing a place for himself in the Championship and battling his way into the Top 8. Kornblith, a Pasadena, California resident, qualified for the Championship with a seventh-place finish in the Western Division Championship. Elarar's three-color white-weenie deck proved a good matchup against Kornblith's deck, a variation of Pacifico's "Flagpole."

After splitting two games, the players were ringed by onlookers, including Pro Tour–Chicago winner Randy Buehler. Kornblith won Game three 3 when Elarar conceded. Although he still had 20 life, Elarar had no way around Kornblith's Tradewind Rider. In Game 4, Elarar got Kornblith down to 1 life before Kornblith's Tradewind Rider nearly locked down the game again. With his Man-o'-War countered, Elarar drew a Firestorm to deal the crucial last point of damage, thus winning the game. For his long flight and three grueling days of competition, Elarar became the 15-and-Under Junior Super Series Champion, and received a $10,000 scholarship.

Members Only

The Junior Super Series is a strange event. It's the only "premier" event that specifically restricts its participation based on something not strictly Magic-related, if you accept that Pro Tour player points and DCI ratings are relevant to Magic skill.

The usual reasons given for the Super Series' age-based qualification policy is that it gives youth a chance to develop their Magic skills in a big tournament without the top pros pouncing on them. In addition to the age restrictions, anyone with more than 4 Pro Tour player points could not participate in this year's Super Series tournaments (for the 1998–99 Junior Super Series, players with any number of Pro Tour player points will not be allowed to compete).

Keep in mind that just because the juniors are under eighteen, nobody is claiming that they aren't some of the best Magic players in the world. Andrew Pacifico, 16-to-18 Champion, placed in the Top 8 of the U.S. Nationals less than a month after he won in Orlando (watch for next month's Sideboard for total coverage of the Nationals).

With the upcoming "ratings flags," more opportunities will be available for tournament organizers to host events that fall somewhere between "Invitational" (meaning that only certain people are allowed to compete) and "Open" (open to all who enter). A tournament could be held only for those players whose ratings have never exceeded 1600, providing a field of new players and those who have never had success in tournaments. Conversely, a tournament could be open only to players with ratings above 2000, guaranteeing that only the best players in the world would be eligible.

Most Invitational tournaments, of course, aren't sanctioned by the DCI, as they violate the basic policy of allowing open and unrestricted competition by its members. The few exceptions, such as Pro Tour Qualifiers (which are open to anyone not already qualified for the Pro Tour event in question) are usually defined by the class of players they restrict rather than the class of players who are not allowed in.

Another class of players that is barred from entry into sanctioned tournaments is Wizards of the Coast employees, which is why I'm pleased to mention that at the World Championships in Seattle, there's going to be a nonsanctioned $1,000 Limited tournament in which employees will be able to play. I, for one, look forward to it.

JUNIOR SUPER SERIES 16-18 Championship match recap AND INFORMATION

PACIFICO VS KELLER

Champion ANDREW PACIFICO

ON A ROLL

Andrew Pacifico placed second in the Junior Super Series Eastern Division Championship with his "Five-Color Flagpole" deck. After this victory, he made his deck public on <www.thedojo.com>, telling the Magic-playing world about the deck that he and Joseph Crosby (15-and-Under Champion of the Eastern Division) had played. The next month he took fifth place at the Southeast Regional Championship, qualifying for the U.S. National Championships while playing nearly the same deck.

So it came as no surprise that the deck he brought to the Junior Super Series Championship was essentially the same deck with a few modifications. As he walked around the spacious floor of DISNEY'S WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS Fieldhouse, he heard people muttering in awed whispers, "That's Andrew Pacifico!" As something of a celebrity, the fact that he became the 16-to-18 Super Series Champion is even more impressive as there were very few surprises for his opponents.

Getting to the event was eventful for Pacifico, who had to attend his high school graduation ceremony in Middleburg, Florida, before making the drive to Orlando. Along the way his car suffered a rear-ending and a flat tire, and he didn't arrive at the hotel until 3:00 A.M. After grabbing a few hours of sleep, he was ready to notch another win.

Although he went undefeated, Pacifico's first two draws placed him below those who went 5–1, but he didn't let his seventh seed dampen his enthusiasm. Claiming not to be worried about any deck other than his own, he rolled through Sunday's single-elimination quarterfinals on his way to becoming the 1998 Super Series Champion for the 16-to-18 age group.

For his victory Pacifico took home $10,000 in scholarship money.

FINAL MATCH

In the longest game of the Super Series Championship, Andrew Pacifico and Shawn Keller squared off for a second time, both intent on winning the champion title. In a one-and-a-half-hour marathon, Pacifico started in amazing fashion, playing four Wall of Blossoms to stop Keller's two Spike Feeders, Bottle Gnome, and Hermit Druid. With Pacifico tapped out at 1 life, Keller made his move and Firestormed to clear away Pacifico's defense. However, Pacifico retaliated by playing several creatures, including Man-o'-Wars, to halt Keller's attack and establish one of his own.

Having no real defense against Pacifico's attacking army, Keller was forced into a Living Death. The result? Pacifico got his four Walls of Blossoms back, along with four cards off the top of his library. This massive card advantage allowed him to come back strong and reestablish a creature dominance. With three Tradewind Riders on the other side of the board, Keller, at 16 life, conceded the momentous battle when his Firestorm was countered by Pacifico.

Match Score: Pacifico 1, Keller 0

Needing to swing the momentum back in his favor, Keller was happy with his opening hand that sported a Birds of Paradise—his only source of nongreen mana. However, an early Legacy's Allure by Pacifico robbed Keller of his Birds, setting up a mana problem that would last throughout the game. Though Pacifico was continually damaged by his own City of Brass, he remained in control until the end. When Keller managed to cast a Spike Feeder as defense, Pacifico cast an Earthquake. After summoning a Maro, Keller had no blockers. He conceded the game when he had no more hope of drawing any nongreen mana. In his hand at the end of the game, Keller held a Firestorm, some Man-o'-Wars, and a Living Death.

Match Score: Pacifico 2, Keller 0

With his back to the wall and down by two games, Keller was in a must-win situation. In his opening hand he drew two swamps, hoping for some nonblack mana to come up in short order. Pacifico, however, was enjoying the benefits of a third-turn Tradewind Rider, along with a third creature that allowed him to power up the Tradewind's bounce ability. Failing to find the right mana for a second game in a row, Keller was helpless against Pacifico's soft lock. The lock kept Keller at two lands, while Pacifico brought out a Maro to speed up the game. Knowing he was locked down with no way of winning, Keller conceded the last game and Andrew Pacifico was crowned the 16-to-18 Super Series Champion for the 1997–98 season.

Final Match Score: Pacifico 3, Keller 0

—Jack Lewis Stanton

Finalist SHAWN KELLER

NATURAL BORN KELLER

Of his play style, long-time Magic player Shawn Keller says, "It depends on the situation. Sometimes I play defensively and sometimes I go all-out." In Los Angeles, when he was on the way to taking third at the Super Series Western Division Championship, he played defensively with a "Five-Color Green" deck based around Tradewind Riders and Armageddon, destroying or bouncing all of his opponent's permanents.

In Orlando, he went all-out with a "Peaches" deck that fills its graveyard with creatures and then brings them all into play at once with Living Death. His Fallen Angels and Lhurgoyfs were frequently able to reach incredible proportion and crush his opposition.

Also competing in Orlando was his twin brother, Thomas, who qualified in the Open, having failed to make the cut at the Western Division Championship at Pro Tour–Los Angeles.

During the Championship, Keller's Magic skills outshone the competition as he received only one loss and one draw.

With a 4–1–1 record, Keller squeaked into the Top 8 as the eighth seed and proceeded to defeat top-seed Blake Quelle in the first round of single elimination, and the top remaining seed, Nathan Nichols, in the second round.

In the third round, Keller couldn't continue the upsets, falling to Andrew Pacifico's "Five-Color Flagpole" deck. He received $7,500 in scholarship money for his efforts, however, which should ease the blow.

Junior Super Series 15 & Under Championship match recap and information

Elarar vs. Kornblith

Champion Jay Elarar

The Canadian Invasion

After practicing for nearly two months, thirteen-year-old Jay Elarar of Vancouver, British Columbia, was looking for respect, as well as a scholarship. "I practiced a lot with [Pro Tour veteran] Pete Radonjic," said Elarar. "I felt confident I would qualify in the Open for the scholarship round." And qualify he did. Elarar finished with an impressive 4–0–1 record in the Open, taking third place for the day.

Playing a "Three-Color White-Weenie Propaganda/Winter Orb" deck, Elarar felt his chances were good for a high placing in the actual Super Series Championship. By the end of the day, he'd fought his way to a 4–1–1 record, good enough for seventh seed heading into the Final 8.

In the quarterfinals Elarar faced off against Geoffrey Allen's "Four-Color White-Weenie Tech" deck. Fearing Allen's three Firestorms, Elarar overcame the obstacles, winning the match in three straight duels. His semifinal opponent, Alex Davis, played a "Necropotence/Firestorm" deck. Finding the answer for all of Davis's threats, Elarar once again swept his opponent 3–0, qualifying for a chance at the Championship title.

In the final showdown Elarar was pitted against California's Charles Kornblith and his "Five-Color Flagpole" deck. In a race for the finish, the first game saw Elarar squeezing out the victory thanks to his Propaganda and Winter Orb. Battling back, Kornblith put the pressure on, winning the next two games thanks to Firestorm (Game 2) and a Tradewind Rider lock (Game 3). In an exciting fourth game, Elarar got an early attack going, only to see it falter once Kornblith brought out his Tradewind Riders. Needing a miracle, Elarar found it with a one-point Firestorm that Kornblith couldn't counter. the final game was purely one-sided as Elarar found the ground forces and counters to force his attack through. Winning three games to two, Elarar was crowned the 15-and-Under Super Series Champion for the 1997–98 season. When asked for comment on his $10,000 victory, Elarar just smiled and said, "I guess the trip was worth it."

—Jack Lewis Stanton

Final Match

In the first game of the finals, both players started out cautiously, trying to feel the other out. Though Kornblith started slowly, his second turn did reveal a Legacy's Allure. This Allure managed to take control of a Warrior en-Kor Elarar had brought out, giving Kornblith some offense against a Soltari Priest that Elarar was attacking him with. From 20 life down to 12, both players maintained an even attack. Then Elarar drew a much-needed Propaganda, forcing Kornblith to pay mana for his continuing attack. Getting down to the wire, Elarar pulled a late-game Winter Orb that led him to victory as Kornblith couldn't pay the mana to attack for the win.

Match Score: Elarar 1, Kornblith 0

Once again, Kornblith started out with a second-turn Legacy's Allure while Elarar wondered where his creatures were hiding. Finding a White Knight, Elarar brought Kornblith down to 18 life. On his next attack, Elarar's White Knight was destroyed by Quicksand. Then the Soltari Monk summoned by Elarar was Allured by Kornblith and quickly set to work bringing its former controller's life total to 14 before running into a Firestorm. Trying to put forth any type of offense, Elarar cast another White Knight, only to see it turn traitor due to another of Kornblith's Legacy's Allures. Kornblith's new-found ally, along with his own Tradewind Rider, brought Elarar down enough in life to end the game with a four-point Firestorm.

Match Score: Elarar 1, Kornblith 1

During Game 3, it was important not to blink. Kornblith started out strong with his traditional second-turn Legacy's Allure, along with an early Tradewind Rider and Man-o'-War. After his unsuccessful attempt at Pyroblasting the Tradewind Rider, Elarar conceded the game at 20 life; he was locked and had no way to combat the Tradewind Rider's bounce ability.

Match Score: Elarar 1, Kornblith 2

In the fourth game, Elarar assembled an early army Genghis Khan would have been proud of. By his fifth turn, Kornblith was down to 9 life, thanks in part to an Elarar Soltari Priest and his own City of Brass. With his attack in full swing, Elarar made a crucial mistake that allowed Kornblith back into the game. Summoning a Man-o'-War, Elarar pointed to Kornblith's Man-o'-War as the creature he wanted to return, not noticing it wasn't the Tradewind Rider he'd meant to choose. This allowed for a near lock on Kornblith's part, forcing Elarar into a Wrath of God to give himself a chance. Though at 1 life, Kornblith came out stronger and looked well on his way to victory, largely controlling the board with a Tradewind Rider and several creatures. Nearly locked, Elarar attempted to summon a Man-o'-War to break the lock, only to see it Mana Leaked away. In desperation, Elarar cast a one-point Firestorm Kornblith's way. Having no counter in hand, Kornblith succumbed to the burn.

Match Score: Elarar 2, Kornblith 2

With the champion title on the line, Elarar's deck came out strong, while Kornblith's daydreamed about days in the Florida sun. After summoning a Warrior en-Kor, Elarar decided to give it an extra boost in power by playing an Empyrial Armor. Kornblith, taking exception to the damage in his future, attempted to Mana Leak the spell, only to see his counter Memory Lapsed. The thrashing of Kornblith only lasted two turns before he was able to Disenchant the Armor, but the damage was done. Kornblith, sitting at 4 life, was burned out in the end by a four-point Firestorm.

Final Match Score: Elarar 3, Kornblith 2

—Jack Lewis Stanton

Finalist Charles Kornblith

Connections

Heading into the week of the Super Series Championship, fifteen-year-old Charles Kornblith of Pasadena, California, was looking for a deck. "I didn't have any prep time because of school and finals," said Kornblith. "I wanted something that could handle Tradewind Rider and white-weenie decks. I saw the 'Five-Color Green Flagpole' deck Andrew Pacifico had posted to the Dojo and figured it could easily handle the decks I was worried about." Pacifico, the 16-to-18 Super Series Champion, sent Kornblith the most current version of the Flagpole deck a week prior to the event. "Andrew's the man. He didn't even know who I was, but he helped me out a lot," said Kornblith.

With deck in hand and the motivation to win, Kornblith found himself seeded fourth in the quarterfinals after an impressive 5–1 showing on Day 1. Playing against Wyatt Agard's "Sligh" deck in the quarterfinals, he eked out a 3–2 match victory. In his semifinal match against Julian Fane, he credited his three sideboarded Phyrexian Furnaces as the key to his 3–1 victory over the "Godzilla/Reanimator" deck.

With a $10,000 scholarship and the 15-and-Under Super Series Champion title at stake, Kornblith was pitted against Canadian Jay Elarar in the finals. After establishing a 2–1 lead, Kornblith failed to win one of the last two games to take the title. Still, he went home a $7,500 scholarship richer. When asked about his experiences at the Super Series Championship, Kornblith replied, "It was tons of fun. You should have been there!"

Junior Super Series Championship

Semifinalist & Finalist Deck Analyses

16–18 } Semifinalists { 15 & Under 16–18

Upon arriving in Orlando for the Junior Super Series Championship, Evan Fistere had amassed a very impressive 79–25–9 record in sanctioned Standard tournaments. Included in that record are the four wins and two draws he received while qualifying at the Eastern Division Championship at Pro Tour–New York.

Fistere's first DCI-sanctioned tournament was in January of 1996, in Bethesda, Maryland (close to his home in Silver Springs). He won it in six rounds, beating such future Magic stars as Pro Tour–New York '98 Finalist Dominic Crapuchettes and Glyeb Koumasinski. In the eighteen months since, Fistere has continued to shine.

In Orlando, he suffered only one loss in the six Swiss rounds, and was seeded sixth going into the quarterfinals on Sunday. He finished off Matt Severa in the first round, but was beaten in the semifinals by eventual Super Series Champion Andrew Pacifico.

–Monty Ashley

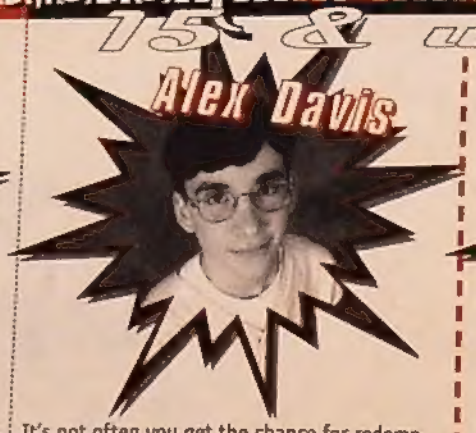
Nathan Nichols qualified for the Junior Super Series Championship by playing in the Open tournament immediately before the tournament. The Sebring, Florida resident traveled under one hundred miles to arrive at the site, where he would go 4–0–1 in the Open, finishing fourth (and only tiebreakers kept him out of second) and earning a berth in Saturday's Championship.

On Saturday, he continued his winning streak, finishing fifth after the Swiss rounds with a 5–1 record (and the only thing separating him from second place was 5 percentage points). On Sunday, though, Nichols's luck ran out as he lost to eventual finalist Shawn Keller in the second round of the single-elimination finals.

Nichols's "Five-Color Flagpole" deck was very similar to Champion Andrew Pacifico's, although the two Floridians had a few different cards. That handful of cards eventually spelled the difference between Pacifico's first-place finish and Nichols's third.

–Monty Ashley

15 & under



It's not often you get the chance for redemption after drawing yourself out of a quarterfinal finish. Thinking he needed a draw to finish in the Top 8 of the Western Division Championship, Alex Davis, a fifteen-year-old from Scottsdale, Arizona, drew with his sixth-round opponent. After all the scores were tallied, Alex finished in ninth place, less than a percentage point out on the tiebreaker. "Going into Orlando, my mentality was to come and prove I'm one of the best juniors in the world," said Davis. "I proved to myself that I deserved one of those spots."

Playing a "Firestorm/Necropotence" deck he and fellow teammate Sean Keller modeled after Randy Buehler's Pro Tour–Chicago winning deck, Davis finished seventh in the Open, and third after Day 1 with a 5–1 record. After sweeping Jake Browne in the quarterfinals, his next opponent was eventual champion Jay Elarar. "I needed a perfect draw to beat Elarar," said Davis of his strategy. "Firestorms, Edicts, Dark Rituals, Necro combo . . . but I ended up getting hands like three lands, two [Dark] Rituals, and a Drain [Life], which was pretty bad. Jay's deck was all over me and it went like that all three games."

–Jack Lewis Stanton

Being competitive at a major tournament is a major accomplishment. Having fun at the same time can be a minor miracle. Sixteen-year-old Julian Fane accomplished both at the Super Series Championship when he decided to play a "Godzilla" deck, created by Pro Tour veteran Alan Comer. "I tested most of the major deck types and they weren't consistent against 'Sligh' or 'Firestorm,'" explained Fane. "I wanted to play a deck that could get lucky (first-turn Hidden Horror) as well as abuse the power of Firestorm."

Fane, a native of Vancouver, British Columbia, found his deck of choice destroying the competition on Day 1. Finishing out the Swiss rounds with an impressive 6–0 record and only two duel losses on the day, he appeared to be the odds-on favorite heading into the Top 8. After sweeping Jeffrey Magid 3–0 in the quarterfinals, he was matched up against eventual finalist Charles Kornblith. After winning the first game, Fane's deck was wrecked by Kornblith's Phyrexian Furnaces. Finishing in third place, Fane took home a $5,500 scholarship for his efforts.

–Jack Lewis Stanton

Super Series Championship Deck Analyses

Jay Elarar (Champion, 15 and Under)

Jay Elarar triumphed in the 15-and-Under division with a three-color white deck designed by Ryan Fuller of Vancouver, British Columbia. It combined a Winter Orb/Propaganda lock with a full complement of white "Protection from X" shadow creatures, a few nonshadows including Man-o'-Wars and Warrior en-Kors, and an assortment of noncreature spells. Elarar said he included the en-Kors mostly to defend against "Sligh decks"; against many other types, he sideboarded them out and brought in more Sleight of Minds to protect the shadow creatures. He also used two Sky Spirits, which not many tournament players use. Elarar commented, "I didn't like them [at first] but then I figured out they get over walls and they've got first strike . . . a really good mana curve." Some players questioned the combination of Empyrial Armor and Firestorm, but it worked out well. An early Armor can give massive damage; later, a Firestorm can finish the opponent.

Andrew Pacifico (Champion, 16 to 18)
Charles Kornblith (Finalist, 15 and Under)
Nathan Nichols (Semifinalist, 16 to 18)

Andrew Pacifico, Charles Kornblith, and Nathan Nichols all played the same "Five-Color Flagpole Control" deck that Pacifico used in the Eastern Division Championship, with a few minor variations. Wall of Blossoms is the "flagpole." The goal is to achieve a Tradewind Riders lockdown; if you can get Tradewind Riders and two other creatures in play and cast Armageddon, you can prevent your opponent from ever having more than one mana. The deck also takes full advantage of the synergy between the "bounce" ability and the Wall of Blossoms and Uktabi Orangutan's "comes-into-play" abilities.

For the Super Series Championship, Pacifico replaced one Orangutan with a Maro and added two more Maros to the sideboard, predicting that many juniors would favor decks that worked well against his. He also added a Firestorm. "Firestorm is definitely one of the best [Standard] cards . . . [but] if my deck drew more than one on the draw, it would lose," Pacifico said.

Kornblith chose to risk a two-Firestorm draw, believing the spell's strength against early creature rushes was worth it. He also added one Earthquake. "If it didn't have an Earthquake, non-pro-red shadows would stomp all over me because I can't really block—I have to rely on the Quicksands."

Julian Fane (Semifinalist, 15 and Under)

Julian Fane used a version of the "Godzilla—Size Does Matter" deck that Alan Comer designed and played in the 1998 Regionals. "I didn't have enough time to build a totally original good deck because I'm trying to do high school in two years," Fane said. He chose Godzilla because "all the other decks either have Firestorm or they're wrecked by Firestorm . . . I wanted to play a deck that had Firestorm and wasn't wrecked by Firestorm." Godzilla is a reanimator deck, designed to discard large creatures such as Verdant Force ("Godzilla"), Silver Queen, or Shivan Dragon, then return them to play with Animate Dead or Necromancy, or, later in the game, with Living Death.

Alex Davis (Semifinalist, 15 and Under)

Alex Davis played a "Firestorm Necrodeck" he designed together with Shawn Keller. Unlike traditional Necrodecks, which use lots of Knights and other weenie creatures, Davis's Firestorm Necro contained almost no creatures and did very little attacking. His deck was designed mostly to hold off or destroy opponent's creatures while building up for big Drain Lifes, with just a bit of creature damage. "There's almost no way they can beat me with Firestorm in my hand," said Davis, "'cause I can always [destroy] as many creatures as they play and then draw up to seven cards again and have a full hand. I play Bottle Gnomes—it's like an Ancestral [Recall]." Corpse Dance allowed Davis to recycle the few creatures he did use and to repeatedly gain life through "dancing Gnomes."

Shawn Keller (Finalist, 16 to 18)

Shawn Keller played a "Peaches" deck designed by Matt Cass and Riad Moursali, two of the top-ranked players in Arizona. The deck's name comes from the picture on Spike Feeder, which looks rather peach-like. The deck is most noted for using Hermit Druid to get out land, dumping masses of cards into the graveyard in the process, and then casting Living Death to bring all creatures from the graveyard into play. Intuition also feeds Living Death: you get to pick out three creatures, and two of them go to the graveyard. Fallen Angels also works well with Living Death since you can sacrifice all your creatures in response to Living Death. The trademark Spike Feeders serve multiple purposes: they give extra life against fast decks, they can keep a creature alive against Firestorm or Earthquake, and they can destroy themselves by removing the last counter when you're ready for Living Death. Many players include Tradewind Riders, but Keller preferred the Bottle Gnomes.

About Firestorm, Keller commented, "You might think you wouldn't want creature removal in the deck, but it can make the difference against 'Sligh.' You can also put your own creatures in the graveyard, so you can discard like two Fallen Angels and a Spike Feeder and then get them all back, and that would be stronger than the Mogg Flunkies they get back or whatever."

Evan Fistere (Semifinalist, 16 to 18)

Evan Fistere played a pure "Sleight/White Weenie" deck. "Most people play with Armageddons, Imperial Armors, or Cursed Scrolls—I play with none of them, not even in the sideboard," Fistere said. He had one secret weapon: "I'm probably the only person in the world who plays with Healing Salve," he said, grinning. The Salves keep creatures alive, which is especially good when you've invested a Sleight of Mind; they can also disrupt an opponent counting on one big Firestorm or Drain Life to win.

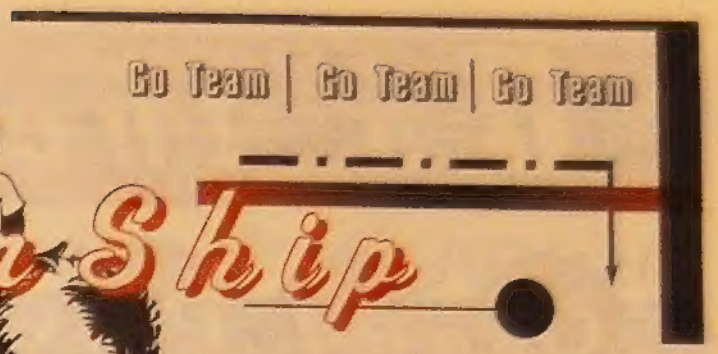
TEAM Championship

Strength in Numbers



Andon Team Championship

"All for one, and one for all." Three heads are better than one and can be a lot of fun at the same time. May 24 marked the first major three-person team tournament held for the newly sanctioned team-tournament format. Andon Unlimited ran the event at the 5th Annual 3-Rivers Game Fest in Pittsburgh. After advancing through the rounds of Swiss and cutting their way through the single-elimination finals, one team emerged victorious—Team CMU.

The winning team is no stranger to victory. Team CMU (Carnegie Mellon University) has among its members Randy Buehler (Pro Tour–Chicago Champion, Grand Prix–Atlanta winner, and North American Extended Champion winner) and Erik Lauer (the "mad genius" of Magic deckbuilding). To win the Championship, Lauer teamed up with Nathan Heiss and Michael Turian. Team CMU edged out Team CSP Strike in the finals, and walked away with a bundle of various prizes, plus expenses paid for Grand Prix–Indianapolis.

—Jeff Donais

Michael Turian's "White Weenie" deck:

CREATURES (20)		LAND (19)
2	Mistmoon Griffin	15	Plains
2	Nomad en-Kor	4	Wasteland
3	Order of the White Shield	Sideboard
4	Soltari Monk	2	Aura of Silence
4	Soltari Priest	1	Benalish Knight
2	Warrior en-Kor	2	Disrupting Scepter
3	White Knight	4	Honorable Passage
SPELLS (21)		2	Light of Day
2	Armageddon	2	Phyrexian Furnace
4	Cursed Scroll	2	Wrath of God
4	Disenchant
2	Empyrial Armor
2	Mox Diamond
4	Tithe
1	Torture Chamber
2	Wrath of God

Mike had this to say:

"The deck plays more 'controlishly' than most white-weenie decks, sometimes pulling off big card advantage with Wrath of God and then using Cursed Scroll for the win."

Erik Lauer's "Burn" deck:

CREATURES (19)		LAND (22)
4	Ball Lightning	18	Mountain
3	Fireslinger	4	Wasteland
4	Ironclaw Orc	Sideboard
4	Jackal Pup	3	Detonate
4	Mogg Fanatic	2	Dwarven Miner
SPELLS (19)		4	Nevinyrral's Disk
4	Cursed Scroll	2	Orgg
4	Fireblast	4	Pyroblast
3	Hammer of Bogardan
4	Incinerate
4	Shock

Erik had this to say:

"I choose Hammer over Kindle because I noticed some decks could not handle Hammer recursion, and it went well with the Disk sideboard plan—I could switch from weenie burn to red control after sideboarding."

Nathan Heiss's "Green-Black Living Death" deck:

CREATURES (20)		LAND (22)
4	Hermit Druid	12	Forest
4	Maro	10	Swamp
2	Nekrataal	Sideboard
2	River Boa	1	Bottle Gnome
4	Spike Feeder	2	Elephant Grass
4	Spike Soldier	2	Emerald Charm
3	Striped Bear	1	Jester's Cap
2	Uktabi Orangutan	1	Phyrexian Furnace
4	Wall of Roots	2	Sylvan Library
SPELLS (9)		2	Tranquil Domain
4	Living Death	2	Uktabi Orangutan
2	Overrun
3	Phyrexian Furnace

Nathan had this to say:

"The deck has strong interaction between its cards using Striped Bears and Hermit Druid to compliment Maro, as well as the interaction of Nekrataal, Uktabi Orangutan, and Hermit Druid with Living Death. This interaction is continued in the sideboard as Hermit Druid with Elephant Grass will keep a 'Black Swarm' deck from attacking while the deck prepares for Living Death."

Canadian National Championship

On June 26, Canadian players from coast to coast gathered beneath the impressive shadows of the Skydome and the CN Tower in Toronto to vie for a place on the Canadian national team as well as the National Championship title.

The action began early Friday morning when 120 hopefuls who had yet to qualify for the invitational portion of the Nationals played in the first Open tournament, competing in a seven-round Standard Swiss draw for sixteen spots. Those players who were unable to qualify in the first Open tournament, or who had a strong nocturnal streak, had a final opportunity in a second Open, which began at 11 P.M. Friday and did not wind down until nearly 7 A.M. Saturday morning.

A few hours later, the slightly frazzled Open competitors were joined by the top finishers from six Regional Championships, last year's National team, and the nation's Top 25 DCI-ranked players. Saturday morning tested the 104 entrants with a Tempest-Stronghold-Exodus Booster Draft and four rounds of Swiss draw. By the end of the day, we witnessed more than a handful of upsets. Paul McCabe, former Pro Tour Champion Terry Borer, and 1997 Canadian national team members Eduardo Ito and Gabe Tsang all suffered their second losses before the end of Day 1 to put them all out of contention. Defending Champion Gary Krakower's attempt at a three-peat was also in serious jeopardy, finishing at 2–1–1.

Notable players standing undefeated at 4–0 after the first day were Vancouver's Thomas Girard and Toronto's Elijah Pollock as well as a few other Western names from the past: top finishers at the 1996 Nationals Peter Radonjic of Vancouver and Ryan Rusaw of Winnipeg.

Sunday morning opened with four rounds of intense Standard play. Control-oriented decks dominated the field with plenty of "Tradewind Rider/Wall of Blossoms" variants, mono-blue decks teeming with counters, and permutations of "Living Death." Mono-black and red were almost nonexistent; the only aggressive deck type that really had any presence was "White Swarm."

The Top 8 players (six of whom had ensured their placing early by taking advantage of the intentional draw rule) at the end of the Swiss rounds were dominated, as expected, by players from Toronto and Vancouver. Representing Vancouver were Pro Tour veterans Peter Radonjic, Thomas Girard, and Terry Tsang. The Toronto contingent was made up of Elijah Pollock and relative newcomers Nick Chen, Jackie Ng, and Jordan Christianson. Rounding out the Top 8 was Ryan Kirk from Regina, Sask. However, a complication swung the balance in Vancouver's favor: before the modified double-elimination rounds began, Christianson was disqualified because of a decklist error. Because the ninth-placed player, James Roy, had already left the tournament, the slot dropped down to Vancouverite Ryan Fuller, Canada's Pro Tour player point leader, who was found just in time eating at a Skydome McDonald's.

Interestingly enough, the first round did not pair any of the Vancouver players together. The round consisted of the following matchups: Girard (fast mono-blue) against Chen ("White Swarm" variant), Tsang ("Prosperous Bloom") against Kirk ("Underwood White-Blue Swarm"), Radonjic (fast mono-blue) against Ng ("Tradewind/Awakening") and Fuller ("White-Green Blessing/Armageddon/Scroll Rack" shuffle recursion) against Pollock ("Tradewind/Awakening"). Chen and Kirk both advanced quickly, hitting hard with their white speed decks, while Radonjic and Fuller took several hours to win epic 2–1 control-on-control battles. Fuller somehow managed to win even after all his Gaea's Blessings were Lobotomied away on his fifth turn of Game 3 and after he nearly killed himself with improper use of Sylvan Library. In the second round, Tsang eliminated Girard; Pollock survived a matchup with Ng's completely identical deck (designed by Gabe Tsang); Chen won the battle of white speed against Kirk; and Radonjic continued his undefeated run by beating teammate Fuller.

The third and final round matched Pollock against Kirk, and Tsang against Fuller, for the last two slots on the national team. Pollock's bad mana draws allowed Kirk a trip to Worlds, while Tsang and Fuller's match featured a more spectacular finish: the last two games between these two normally creatureless decks were decided by huge creatures from their sideboards. Fuller won Game 2 with his massive and unexpected Maro, but Tsang's surprise Game 3 Shivan Dragon, cast with the help of Vampiric Tutor, Squandered Resources, and Fuller's own Hall of Gemstones, earned Tsang a spot on the national team.

Finally, Chen and Radonjic played for the Championship, matching the Vancouver veteran's "Mono-Blue Attack-Counter" deck against Chen's "White-Swarm Mass-Removal" strategy. In the first game, Radonjic quickly shut down Chen's ground-based attack with Ophidians and Legacy's Allure, and won with a Waterspout Djinn, backing up his entire position with counter magic. In the second game, Chen got off to a faster start, attacking furiously with shadow creatures and a Man-o'-War. However, the game soon turned when Chen attempted to destroy Radonjic's re-cast Waterspout Djinn with a Firestorm, discarding a Cursed Scroll, among other valuable resources. The Firestorm, and the ensuing attack, would have put Radonjic at a nearly irrecoverable 2 life; however, after casting the Djinn, Radonjic had left a single island untapped instead of a Quicksand. That island allowed Radonjic to Hydroblast the Firestorm, leaving the Waterspout in play and Chen's hand empty. Although Chen attempted to continue the attack, a second Quicksand and a second Waterspout allowed Radonjic a huge advantage in the race. Facing two Waterspout Djinns at 8 life, Chen was forced to concede the Championship match to Radonjic.

Radonjic's victory marks the first time someone from outside Toronto has won the title. The Canadian West, by capturing three of the spots on the team, has put itself back on the Magic: The Gathering map. To prove themselves, however, Radonjic, Chen, Kirk, and Tsang still have the daunting task of defending Canada's Team Championship title at the World Championships in August.

On the Circuit

Grand Prix—Zürich

Steven O'Mahoney-Schwartz Triumphs Again

"I thought I had a good chance of getting to the Top 8 because I had three byes and I have played a lot of sealed and draft," grinned Steven O'Mahoney-Schwartz. The seventeen-year-old defeated Rudy Edwards in the finals to win Grand Prix–Zürich.

Grand Prix–Zürich was held in Schützenhaus Albisgüetli, a large tree building in Zürich. Inside, the building was decorated with large shields, but the Magic banner hanging on the stage and the clothed tables all over the floor dominated the room.

Many strong players had found their way to Zürich; a total of twenty-three players had three byes going into the event. Two World Champions (Jakub Slemr and Alexander Blumke), four Pro Tour winners (Frank Adler, Randy Buehler, David Price, and Jon Finkel), and several Grand Prix winners (Raphaël Levy, Steven O'Mahoney-Schwartz, and Michaël Debard) were present, along with other well-known players like Eric Tam, Brian Hacker, Janosh Kühn, and Gabriel Tsang.

Eight players went undefeated the first day and the Top 4 were all North American: Edwards, Finkel, O'Mahoney-Schwartz, and Tsang.

The second day went by without any big problems. Those who didn't qualify for Day 2 could enjoy the numerous side events held at the site. The crowd gathering around the sign-up tables for side events was always large, and so was the queue to get cards signed by artist Donato Giancola, who has painted popular cards like Steel Golem, Kindle, and Dismiss.

Two Americans were still in the lead after the second Swiss round. Rudy Edwards was enthroned on top of the list with 31 points, while Steven O'Mahoney-Schwartz had the best tiebreakers of those who had 28 points. The Top 8 included three Americans (Rudy Edwards, Steven O'Mahoney-Schwartz, and Jon Finkel), three Germans (Janosh Kühn, Marcel Baran, and Michael Huth), along with Michaël Debard from France and Alexander Blumke from Switzerland.

Edwards drafted the strangest deck of all the quarterfinal players. With a core of blue, he constructed a four-color deck with fliers and shadow creatures, splashing black for Endless Scream and Dark Banishing, red for Seething Anger, and white for Soltari Foot Soldier. O'Mahoney-Schwartz drafted a very strong red-blue ping deck with two Fireslingers, one Rootwater Hunter, Mogg Fanatic, Searing Touch, Fanning the Flames, and good creatures. Debard went for a solid black-green deck that packed Extinction, Fevered Convulsions, regenerators, and recycle. Blumke drafted a blue-green deck using fliers, spikes, and Volrath's Curse; Kühn sported a white-black deck with shadow, Coercions, Master Decoy, and Eviscar's Justice; Finkel drafted a red-green fattie deck with Overrun and Rolling Thunder; Baran played a red-black deck; and Huth drafted a white-red deck.

In the quarterfinals Edwards defeated Huth 2–0, Kühn lost 2–0 to Blumke after getting mana screwed in both rounds, Debard beat Finkel 2–1, and O'Mahoney-Schwartz won 2–0 against Baran. After an exciting semifinals where Edwards actually won a game without summoning a single creature, the two Americans met in the finals.

When faced against O'Mahoney-Schwartz's killer deck, Edwards came up short. In Game 1 he was a bit short on creatures. In Game 2 he had to declare a Mulligan and ended up with six lands, but kept his hand and drew a total of two spells. And in Game 3 he was just burned out.

"My problem was that my deck had a bunch of stupid stuff. But Steve's deck was amazing. It was probably the best draft deck I've seen," Edwards admitted.

Expatriate Champion

Steven O'Mahoney-Schwartz thrives in Europe: first he won Grand Prix–Madrid, then he finished second in Pro Tour–Mainz, and finally, he won Grand Prix–Zürich.

"I haven't done anything major in the States, but I always do well outside. My best result in the U.S. was taking ninth place in Pro Tour–L.A. ['96]," he laughed.

On the first day Steven played a black-blue deck with a splash of red. Cursed Scroll and buyback spells don't normally work well together, but it worked for him. The second day he got another good deck, this time black and red with a splash of white. Four shadow creatures, Lightning Blast, Master Decoy, and other good spells took him to the finals, where he got his amazing red-blue deck that gave him the victory.

"I had a good time and did well. What more can I want? Besides, this was better than two more days at school," the champion smiled.

Tournament Tips

Never Let Them See You Sweat

This article is designed to assist tournament organizers and players better understand the tournament process and how to deal with potential problems.

Situation #1: "How much time until the next round starts?"

Tip #1 for tournament staff: This is the most-often-asked question at any tournament. Try not to "lick the big stamp and go postal" after hearing it for the 112th time. Instead, set up a central area to post this information, like a posterboard or a time clock to indicate when each round ends (or begins). Also, try not to tell players that they have X number of minutes between each round; otherwise you'll be committed to allow that much time even if you are ready in two minutes—thereby holding everyone else up.

Tip #1 for players: Wear a watch. Try to remember what time your round started and do the math when you are done. Remember, "done" means you and your opponent have reported the results of your match, not that you are finished playing. Tournament staffers are too busy to answer this question if everyone asks it: "Let's see, if it takes three minutes to answer this question for each person, the next rounds starts . . . Tuesday."

Situation #2: "How many points do I need to advance?" or "Do I have enough points to advance?"

Tip #2 for tournament staff: Another extremely frustrating question. Try to answer the player without giving a specific number. If you tell the player he or she needs 10 points to advance, and in fact he or she actually needed twelve, the player will feel that you are responsible for the loss, and that you wasted his or her time. Try to encourage players to make self-decisions: if they don't think they are doing well, perhaps they should decide whether or not to withdraw. We would prefer the game be played out with the cards, not calculators.

Tip #2 for players: If you choose to play the numbers game, that's your prerogative, but don't expect the staff to tabulate results after every round just so you can see how you are doing. The easiest answer to this question is: "You need more points than everyone else. Period." By the way, that plan you had, the one where you throw the first round to put yourself in the "easier" bracket of players? Please note: You are not the first one to think of this. This is a cheap, sleazy ploy, and not worthy of a good player in the first place. Repeat after me, "Intentional losing is bad. Don't do it!"

Situation #3: Declaration of Forfeiture

Tip #3 for tournament staff: This is the most difficult situation to deal with, because it usually involves high tempers or cheating (not always, but sometimes). The best thing to do is remain calm and maintain a professional demeanor while explaining to the offending player why he or she is being removed. If cheating is involved in a sanctioned tournament, remember to report this to the DCI for disciplinary action. Cheating should never be tolerated in any tournament, sanctioned or otherwise.

Tip #3 for players: If you're unsure what "declaration of forfeiture" means, ask a member of the tournament staff to explain it to you before the event begins. That way you can be sure not to do something that may get you tossed out. This is a game, and no game is any fun if somebody is cheating. So if you see something wrong in the play environment, call it to the attention of one of the judges. If you win by cheating, then you haven't really won at all, have you?

Situation #4: Manners

Tip #4 for tournament staff: Common courtesy costs nothing to use. You can be in stressful situations at times, so remember that the players competing at your event want to enjoy themselves, so let them have their fun. But remember to have some fun yourself while you're at it . . . play a game with someone between rounds (just make sure to monitor the tournament at the same time), or quiz your staff on their rules knowledge (or have them quiz you). And, if neither of these options is viable, there's always rock-paper-scissors!

Tip #4 for players: Most tournament staffers are volunteers, so when you have a problem, please remember that the person you are addressing is there for fun, just like you. Your problem is no more important than the next person's, so please wait to be heard instead of interrupting somebody else. Remember to bring up problems as they occur instead of waiting until it is too late to correct them. Above all else, remember to keep your temper in check when dealing with others. This will ensure that a good time can be had by all—players as well as staffers.

Magic Rulings & Errata

July 1998

Magic Rulings & Errata

A Summary of Recent, Significant Rulings

General Rules

1) When a permanent's ability refers to "opponent" and the permanent itself isn't targeted, it refers to an opponent of the player playing the ability, regardless of who controls the permanent. For example, Oath of Scholars reads, "During each player's upkeep, if that player has fewer cards in hand than target opponent, the player may discard his or her hand and draw three cards." Each player plays this ability during his or her own upkeep, choosing one of his or her opponents as the target at the time the ability is played.

Contrast this with Miser's Cage, which reads, "At end of target opponent's upkeep, if that player has five or more cards in hand, Misers' Cage deals 2 damage to him or her." Because the target is identified in the first clause, before any conditions or effects, Miser's Cage is a targeted permanent. You choose the target opponent when you play the Cage, and the target can't be changed. Even if your opponent takes control of the Cage, it still targets him or her.

2) If a triggered ability gives a particular player a chance to do something, that player plays the ability, makes all choices for it, and is considered the controller of the ability (even if someone else controls the permanent). When the ability triggers, the player who will play the ability is determined; this information becomes part of the "pseudo-spell" created by the triggered ability and can't be changed. For example, if Pandemonium is in play and you play a creature, but your opponent somehow gains control of the creature before Pandemonium's ability is played, you still play that ability.

If a triggered ability gives each player the chance to do something, the ability is played and controlled by the permanent's controller, but each player makes his or her own choices. The active player must choose first. For example, Noble Benefactor's ability is played by its controller, and the nonactive player can wait to see whether the active player searches his or her library before deciding what to do.

3) All asterisks (*) in creatures' power and/or toughness are considered 0 when the creature is not in play. For example, your Volrath's Shapeshifter is 0/0 if Minion of the Wastes is on top of your library. (This simplifies some weird Shapeshifter combinations and questions that rules gurus have been dreaming up and clears the way for possible future cards.)

Errata

1) Oath of Lieges should read, "... put that land into play under his or her control." Similarly, Oath of Druids should read, "... puts that creature into play under his or her control ...." (Without this errata, the permanents would come into play under the control of the Oath's controller, regardless of who played the ability.)

2) Mogg Assassin should read, "{T}: Flip a coin. Then, if ...." Adding "then" allows regeneration spells and abilities to be played. (Without the "then," you'd have to play regeneration spells and abilities before flipping the coin—and because you wouldn't know which creature was going to be destroyed, you couldn't legally play them.)

3) Ebony Charm, Oath of Ghouls, Phyrexian Grimoire, and Sylvan Hierophant now target the card(s) in a graveyard they affect. (The rules state that choices must be made when playing a spell or ability, but the lack of "target" on a few that involved choosing cards from a graveyard has confused players into thinking that such choices are postponed. This errata makes it clearer that the choice must be made when the spell or ability is played.)

Specific Card Rulings

1) If Invasion Plans is in play, creatures that require paying a cost to block cannot block. This is true because blocking costs must be paid when blocks are declared, but Invasion Plans causes the attacking player to declare blockers, and that player cannot pay the costs.

Exodus FAQs

1) Disenchant is not modal, so it will destroy a Transmogrifying Licid even if the Licid changes from artifact to enchantment or vice versa in response to the Disenchant.

2) When Fade Away resolves, each player counts the number of creatures he or she controls, then makes the required number of payments and/or sacrifices. The active player must announce his or her choices first, but all sacrifices and payments take place simultaneously. For example, if you have no mana and permanents in play except two creatures, you must sacrifice both of them. Note that you can't play mana sources during the resolution—you must do so before the spell begins to resolve.

3) Pandemonium causes creatures to deal damage equal to their current power (when the ability resolves), not their base power. For example, if Pandemonium and Crusade are in play when a White Knight comes into play, it will do 3 damage. But if the creature leaves play before Pandemonium's ability is played (because of some other triggered ability or mana source), it will do 0 damage. This could occur if, for example, your opponent controls Æther Flash and you bring a creature into play with 1 or 2 toughness during your opponent's turn. Æther Flash's ability will be played first, so the creature will most likely be destroyed before you can play Pandemonium's ability.

Arena League News

ARENA™ LEAGUE

The Arena league has exciting plans in store for the Summer Season, which starts August 10 and runs through September 13. The playful, new Magic: The Gathering—Unglued supplement will be combined with the Extended Constructed format for the Summer Season. In this alternative format, each player's deck must contain at least sixteen (16) non-land, non-token Unglued cards.

Unglued is a non–tournament-legal supplement for the Magic game. The cards were designed specifically for amusement and use mechanics that would not be allowed in normal Magic game play. If people fondly remember cards like Chaos Orb, Shahrazad, Game of Chaos or Goblin Bomb, Unglued is the card set for them. Unglued cards will break rules players thought unbreakable and make them do things they never imagined during a game of Magic.

Also starting in the Summer Season, the Arena league will be bringing back its exclusive alternative-art land cards which each participant will receive.

The new exclusive-to-Arena Mulligan will go into effect beginning in the Summer Season. The new Mulligan rule works as follows:

Each player individually determines which Mulligan he or she will be using for the match before play begins. The Arena league allows two types of Mulligans: the casual Mulligan and the competitive Mulligan. Opponents are allowed to use different Mulligans.

Casual Mulligan: At the beginning of each duel, each player draws an initial hand of seven cards. If a player discovers that his or her initial hand contains all land cards, no land cards, or only one land card, then the player may declare a Mulligan, allowing him or her to reshuffle, recut, and redraw. When a player declares a Mulligan, he or she must show his or her hand to the opponent one card at a time, face up on the table.

Competitive Mulligan: A player may reshuffle, for any reason, and redraw his or her initial hand with one less card. The player may repeat this process until he or she has no cards left in his or her hand. If this Mulligan is being used, players no longer get a free reshuffle when their opponents use a Mulligan.

The decision of whether or not to Mulligan passes between players following the order established by the play-draw decision. The participant who plays first in the duel decides whether or not to Mulligan first before passing the decision to the other player. Once a player passes the opportunity to declare a Mulligan, that player may not change his or her mind. Players may declare a Mulligan any time they reshuffle their cards before a duel begins. However, they may only declare one Mulligan each per duel.

Upcoming season formats include Urza's Saga and Rath Cycle prereleased preconstructed decks and new multiplayer variants. Stay tuned.

Play hard and remember—it's just a game.

News from the Front

The BattleTech DCI program is poised to roll out a premier-level membership program similar to the membership program offered for Magic: The Gathering players. Members will receive membership dogtags with their name, rank, and DCI number as well as a special issue card and a quarterly newsletter. The newsletter will contain articles submitted by players and tournament coordinators and will range in subject matter from strategy tips to tournament play guides to card set reviews. The BattleTech command team hopes to start accepting submissions from players before this article is published. If you wish to submit a BattleTech-related article for the "War Report" or for the Sideboard, send electronic submissions in text format to <davsch@wizards.com> or send hard copies to: Wizards of the Coast, Attn.: Dave Schwimmer, P.O. Box 707, Renton, WA 98057-0707.

Congratulations to all MechWarriors who have won or received invitations to the World Championships at GEN CON, August 8–9. As of June 23, the invitation list appeared as follows: Peter Sundholm, Terry Borer, Shiu-Yik Au, Rick Bird, Barry Young, Dave Hymas, Chris Demaio, Luis Alvarado, Ralph Anderson, Eddie Lopez, Tom Smith, Dennis Brooks, Joe Cain, Carlos Guerra, Dana Costa, Doug Harvilla, Steve Davis, Gaddiel Ayala, Max Bowie, Agostinho Silva, Jay Rullan, Eric Vaughn, Michael Bodey, David Markham, Dean Eckenroth Jr., Shannon Kopf, Ron Gates, Sigmund Lam, Colin Toh, Min Boey, Brian Fox, Christopher Lunt, Chad Edwards, Paul Wilkins, Lyman Leong, and Jeff Pidlypchak.

Again, congratulations to all qualified players and to all players who qualified at subsequent events who were not mentioned here.

It has come to the attention of the DCI that a number of players have not received or are not aware of the most recent rules update. Therefore we have republished them in the most recent issue of the Duelist magazine. In addition, the BattleTech DCI is shifting to quarterly ruling periods so that issues may be addressed more quickly. The announcement dates for these rulings will be the first of December, March, June, and September. The rulings posted on these dates take effect on the first day of the following month.

Rulings effective as of June 1, 1998:

Definition of Units

A Unit is any card that is not a Command card or Mission card. Thus Vehicles, Battle Armor, and 'Mechs are all Units. As of May 30, 1998, all cards released prior to the Commander's Edition set should be treated as if the word "'Mech" or "'Mechs" on a card were "Unit" or "Units." In essence, this means Vehicles and Battle Armor are now treated as 'Mechs when they interact with other cards. Note that Pilot cards are still able to pilot only 'Mechs, not other types of Units.

Vehicle Die Roll

Effective with this rules update, when a Vehicle is damaged the Vehicle's controller rolls a die. On a die roll of 5 or 6, that Vehicle is destroyed. Note that this changes the Vehicle "break point" from a roll of 6 to a roll of 5 or 6.

Card Limit for Vehicles and Battle Armor

Effective with this announcement, the DCI staff is imposing a ten-card limit on Vehicles and Battle Armor in Constructed decks. Please note that players may not have ten of each, but rather a total of ten including Vehicles and Battle Armor cards combined. This rule does not pertain to Sealed-Deck tournaments.

Die-Rolling Methods

At the discretion of the tournament judge, players may be forced to change their die-rolling methods to ensure the most random rolls possible. The judge may require that the die be rolled in any way he or she deems necessary for satisfactory randomization. These methods may include but are not limited to use of a die cup, dropping the die from a certain height, and using hands as a die cup.

Please note that with the release of Commander's Edition in late July, all cards must be played by the most recent wording. For example, the original text for Inside Job was "Scrap Inside Job when it is revealed. Choose one of your 'Mechs. If that 'Mech attacks alone, it cannot be blocked this turn." Now it says "Scrap Inside Job when it is revealed. You may activate this card only when one of your Units attacks alone. This mission cannot be blocked." Upon the release of Commander's Edition, all copies of Inside Job must be played by the latter wording. Please also note that several other cards are affected. For a complete listing of changed cards and errata for Commander's Edition, please check our website at <www.wizards.com>.
